

The Norman Conquest

71

the losing of their race; in May,
however,
they were forced to yield, and the capital of Pandulf Iron-Head Richard's, There
yet remained Lombard dynasts in Trajetto-, Sora,
and elsewhere, but their could make no
stand against the Prince and his son Jordan,

Only one of the ancient principalities survived the wreck, and Salerno was the last stronghold of the Lombard But Amain^{1*}
Sorrento, and belonged to the old order of things; they too were by the insatiable Normans; the to whom would Ml, or Guiscaxd?

was still the of the Cata-the and the key of Apulia,
In 1068
Robert it by land sea,
and, in
of Greek and Norman revolts in Apulia,
forced it into surrender after a on April 16, 1071, Not one foot of ground remained to the in Lower Italy from finally of Apulia. But a of Norman revolts his power there; they found their origin in the

of

in the which the

of the felt the
of in the to
the rate of law asovereignty.
Supported by Greek gold, by Richard of